

Company Culture

Find your true leaders

(this does not mean just find your managers!)

Those who have the potential to influence on scale AND believe that culture is important Engage them as the thought leaders...

for their culture, and genuinely invest time and money into their development

Start with a massive focus on their self awareness as leaders sharing the insights and tools needed to master their sphere of control and influence others

Advance their understanding of psychological safety in the workplace and give them the tools to lead connection and belonging within and between teams

Expand their minds to think creatively, dynamically and diversely about themselves, their collaboration with others and what is possible in their organisation

Now have them apply everything they have learned to create tangible cultural processes or products in the most creative way they can think of, engaging as many people as they can!
